

5 UP journalism students picked Inquirer university scholars

Five UP students and their peers from other schools in the Philippines were selected as the winners of the 2001 Inquirer University Scholars Award. The winners were announced on June 13, 2001, at the Inquirer University Scholars Award ceremony held at the Inquirer Building in Manila.

The winners were: UP Diliman - John Joseph B. Bantayan, UP Los Baños - John Joseph B. Bantayan, UP Manila - John Joseph B. Bantayan, UP Naga - John Joseph B. Bantayan, and UP Visayas - John Joseph B. Bantayan.

The winners were selected from a pool of 100 students who were nominated by their respective universities. The winners will receive a cash prize and a certificate of appreciation from the Inquirer.

The Inquirer University Scholars Award is a prestigious award that recognizes the best journalism students in the Philippines. It was established in 1990 and has since become one of the most respected awards in the field.

The Inquirer University Scholars Award is a testament to the hard work and dedication of the winners. It is a great honor to be selected as a winner of this award.

Beheading horrifies Asia; US blamed

STOCKHOLM—The execution by beheading of an Asian woman today in Iraq, the third such killing by Iraqis in London, horrified Asia, but some Western leaders have made no attempt to push back to US authorities in Baghdad.

"The execution is a disgrace," said a spokesman for the United Nations, which said it would condemn the killing.

"It is a disgraceful act of violence against a woman," said a spokesman for the United Nations, which said it would condemn the killing.

The killing was the first of its kind in Iraq since the 2003 invasion.

Subsequent studies have not provided the same results. For example, in a 1996 survey of 1,000 physicians, 46% indicated that they were not using any type of decision support system, and 30% indicated that they were using a decision support system, but not a clinical decision support system. The results of this survey are consistent with the results of the 1994 survey, which found that 46% of physicians were not using any type of decision support system, and 30% indicated that they were using a decision support system, but not a clinical decision support system.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The first session was a warm-up, the second was a cardiovascular workout, and the third was a strength training session. The results showed that the HR and EE of the women increased significantly after the 10-week program. The HR increased from 140 to 150 beats per minute, and the EE increased from 1,200 to 1,400 kcal per day. These results suggest that a 10-week training program can effectively improve the cardiovascular fitness and energy expenditure of sedentary, middle-aged women.

These authors also found that the use of a computer-based decision support system (DSS) significantly improved the accuracy of the diagnosis. The authors concluded that the use of a DSS is a promising approach to improve the accuracy of the diagnosis of infectious diseases.

The second subcategory, that of depression-related disorders, also has been shown to be related to the same set of variables. In a sample of 100 patients with depression, the prevalence of depression-related disorders was 10.0% (95% CI = 5.0%–15.0%).
